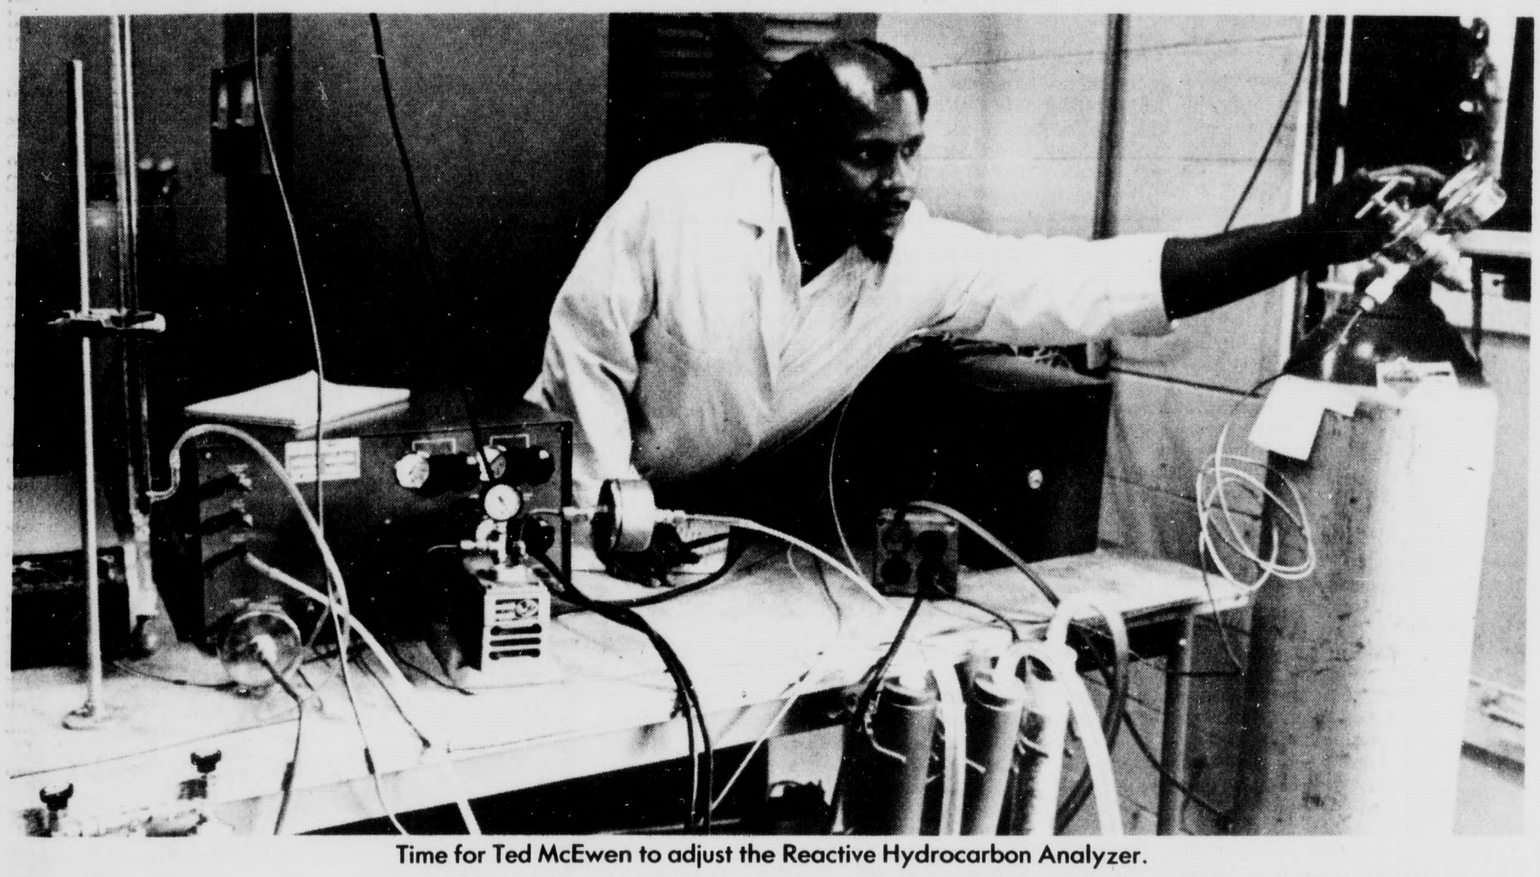
History repeating itself, say hospital boosters



Time for Ted McEwen to adjust the Reactive Hydrocarbon Analyzer.

PLEASANTON — History is repeating itself in the formation of the new proposed doctors' hospital in Pleasanton, advisor said Wednesday night.

Harvey Glasser, president of California Health Services, told a small gathering at Castlewood Country Club that just as a small, dedicated group met in the late 1950's to form what became Valley Memorial Hospital, so, too, a small group is getting the doctors' hospital off the ground.

The need was there in the late 1950's and the community rose to it, said Glasser. And that is happening again with the newer residents of the west valley heeding the call of 25 local doctors to form a new hospital group, said Glasser.

The only difference today, of course, is that Valley Memorial Hospital would like to expand its operations to build a hospital in Pleasanton and doesn't that present some problems to the new group, The Times asked Glasser and Dr. Marvin Goldman, one of the founding doctors.

Goldman said he wanted to clear up some misconceptions about his hospital reported earlier in the press. For one thing while doctors will be involved in the hospital, it will be run by an administrator, not doctors, and its board will be comprised primarily of health consumers.

For another thing, the new hospital wants to work in concert with Valley Memorial, not in conflict against it, said Goldman.

Some may characterize a skirmish between the new group and Valley Memorial as a New Guard versus Old Guard struggle.

However, Goldman said such a characterization would be unfair to what really counts: people. They don't have Old Guard or New Guard labels on them when it takes 25 or 35 minutes to get an ambulance to "the hospital of your choice, Valley Memorial or John Muir", said Goldman. "We're talking about people," he said.

"Nobody owns a hospital," said Glasser. "It's a public facility. People sponsor them, someone may have his name on the title, but it has to attract and serve the public.

"The group here is not too different from the one which got Valley Memorial going. They pushed harder then than they do now. They created that hospital and now they have that responsibility to maintain it."

Valley Memorial sent a representative, Larry Freeman, the assistant administrator, but he was asked to leave prior to the start of the meeting because Glasser objected to the presence of Freeman's tape recorder.

There will be a time when the doctors' group wants to have dialogue with Valley Memorial, but it will be at another time and under other circumstances, said Glasser.

Others in attendance at the meeting were two reporters, Dan Diez of the Pleasanton Recreation Department's senior citizens' area of concern, and three citizens, one of them Councilman Frank Brandes, who emphasized he was there as a private citizen.

"I'm here because I heard they were going to put up a hospital in San Ramon," said Brandes. "If they did that, there never would be one in Pleasanton. I want to see a hospital in Pleasanton. This group put in its application before the two year moratorium was declared for any new hospital construction. Valley Memorial said five years ago it will have a hospital in Pleasanton, but we don't have it yet."

The San Ramon location to which Brandes referred was the original location discussed by the doctors, but since then they have decided to negotiate for land near the Interstate 580 - 680 interchange. They feel

Lady Luck smiles on Fallon House

DUBLIN — Maybe the unlucky Dublin Historical Preservation Association is having a change in fortune.

Pending routine approval by the Board of Supervisors, DHPA has won a $3,500 grant from the Alameda County Bicentennial Commission to reconstruct the Fallon House.

The pioneer Pleasanton house was accidentally burned last May in a fire training exercise. Between salvaged materials and old plans and photographs, DHPA members hope to reconstruct the home on a site set aside for historic restorations in Dublin.

Bad luck dogged pHPA all summer as they waited for state bond funding and learned the reconstruction project didn't qualify.

More bad luck: When old Murray School was moved out of the path of the Interstate 580 widening last year, it was set on the wrong type of foundation.

DHPA members were on hand to try to stop the burning of Fallon House, and they were also on hand to show the contractor where the proper foundation materials were.

"But he just wanted to get the job done fast," related DHPA member Judy Gahl yesterday, in retracing the thwarted steps of her organization to found an historical center.

"Now the job has to be done over, and we're hoping to get the state highway department to do it before hey finish the freeway her."

The expected Bicentennial Commission grant, combined with a $3,000 donation from Foothill Road builders Stoneson and Taubman, will pay more than half the expected cost of rebuilding Fallon House. DHPA have already put stakes into the ground where they plan to break ground and await approval from the Alameda County Planning Commission.

Mediation for Murray nearly dead

Barring a renewed burst of enthusiasm for mediation, the Murray School District negotiations impasse will proceed to the fact-finding stage.

Murray teacher unit negotiators and the administration, represented by counsel Keith Breon and assistant superintendent Heinz Gewing, held what was apparently the last (and fruitless) mediation session Thursday morning.

Mediator Mike West, assigned to the district by the State Office of Conciliation, may still call for another mediation session if he believes the two sides may be close to a contract settlement.

Or he could declare an end to across the table mediation and submit the dispute to fact-finding.

Whether the teacher - administration contract differences go to Step 3 of the collective bargaining course will be known early next week, according to Gewing.

Gewing said teacher and administration negotiators, in league with West, moved closer on the issues of salary and binding arbitration of grievances.

Murray Teachers Association president Bob Kroetch was not available.

'Smogman' tests valley air

Ten a.m. Yellow smog is beginning to veil the Valley.

Ted McEwen, chemist, turns his Valiant off the freeway at North Livermore Avenue and brings it to a stop in front of a small storefront at 2131 Railroad Ave.

In front of the pink curtains in the window is the emblem of the Bay Area Pollution Control District. Ted's car is marked with the same symbol. He is the one - man operation keeping a daily tab on the smog problem that plagues the Pleasanton - Dublin - Livermore San Ramon basin.

When it gets bad enough, the pollution control district issues a "smog alert" from their headquarters in San Francisco. Schools must keep children indoors all day, athletic practice is canceled and people with breathing problems are warned to take care.

There was only one "smog alert" this summer in the Valley, thanks to fresh breezes that swept away the burning gases before they reached a poisonous level. Many years, there are several alerts.

All smog data for the Valley comes through a hole in the roof of the old store at 2131 Railroad Ave. Plastic tubes run down from that hole to a half - dozen machines which measure the many components of pollution — oxides, ozone, carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons, dirt particles.

Besides the measurements recorded by McEwen, BAPCD predicts alerts from wind "soundings" phoned in from Bay Area airports.

Buttoning his lab coat, Ted enters the high - ceilinged back room, a former garage converted into a laboratory, complete with scientific green paint on concrete walls and floor.

In these spartan surroundings, Ted is greeted with a chorus of clanks, whirrs and squeaks from his daily working companions machines of every size and shape, sucking in dirty air through tubes and reporting pollution levels on long strips of graph paper.

One of Ted's jobs is to collect the print - outs from all of his machines, analyze the data and file the graphs for future reference.

Another duty is keeping the delicate machines in precise working order.

This morning, McEwen goes for the print - out on wind speed and direction. "Only one mile per hour, west - southwest." he frowns. "This happens a lot on September and October. What we need is a fresh ocean breeze to carry away the pollution."

One machine looks like a digital clock. But the red numbers flashing on the screen every 30 seconds report ozone concentration, not the time.

Now the screen shows 12, now 14, now 13. "When it gets up to 30 parts per hundred million, we start worrying," Ted says.

A "Coefficient of Haze" gadget filters dust through a strip of paper while a photocell reads the density of the dirt layer. In two hours, the machine has produced only a faint circle of gray. Typically, Valley air has more gases than particles in it.

Next, Ted reads the dials on a seven - foot - long steel box which holds instruments for detecting carbon monoxide — the gas which deprives the body of life giving oxygen in the blood.

"Slightly more CO than norman — 6 parts per million. The graph shows a buildup about 7 a.m. when commute traffic goes through the Valley. There'll be another buildup in late afternoon."

Showiest instrument in the lab is a tall gray machine sporting spirals of clear plastic tubing.

Beads of water are sliding up the tubes, turning from clear to pink as they travel.

"Oxides," the chemist explains. "The water is treated with a dye that turns pink and even purple when exposed to nitrogen dioxide."

According to this graph, oxides came to a peak at 9:30 a.m.

Last visit of the morning is to the "Reactive Hydrocarbon Analyzer," which measures the hydrocarbons produced from coal - or oil - burning machines.

Social security snafu— housing authority stuck

PLEASANTON — A higher occupancy rate, not higher rents, could help the housing authority through its latest crisis.

The housing authority owes the federal government $8,131 for social security payments not made into the system by the housing authority management between Jan. 24 and Sept. 30 of this year.

The debt arose because the housing authority gave the wrong notification to the social security system when it tried to terminate its social security program last January. The forms sent to social security merely put the accounts in suspension, while employes thought their accounts were terminated.

As a result, there were no social security deductions and now the federal government wants that money paid into the fund. The employes are absolved from the debt; the responsibility rests with housing authority management.

Executive Director Michael Parsons told The Times yesterday that he would hate to raise the rents again to make up the difference. The housing authority recently raised rents by 17 per cent and Parsons was looking forward to a year of balanced books.

However, not all units are occupied at Komandorski Village. If the entire 169 unit area can be filled, it might generate enough cash to help make up the $8,131, said Parsons. The county welfare department has been cooperative in referring persons who need low - income housing now that it knows PHA wants to fill up the units.

The housing authority also plans to convert some of the hard - to - rent large units to smaller units, said Parsons.

Parsons also intends to approach current and former employees to see if they are willing to pay part or all of their social security funds for the eight months in question. The housing authority was to pay 5.85 per cent of the employee's wage into the fund and the employee paid another 5.85 per cent, with all of the paperwork done by housing authority management.

Commissioners at their meeting Wednesday night voted 5-0 (two absent) to endorse State Proposition One which would authorize the state to lend $500 million to local housing authorities for new construction.

Commissioners also authorized Parsons as the sole spokesperson for the housing authority in its affairs. There had been complaints behind the scenes by commissioners that information being dispensed by various board members was not uniform.

Quarries, golf courses in assessors' sites

The State Board of Equalization has given assessment practices in Alameda County "a very good" rating, but there are recommendations in that report which could spell bad news for some Valley property owners.

Taxes on the vast sand and gravel deposits, on most commercial properties and possibly on Castlewood Country Club could go up if the State Board's "recommendations" are pursued by the Alameda County Assessor's Office.

"We anticipate furture progress to include complete reappraisal of all commercial properties in the next two the years," the report by the Assessment Standards Division of the State Board of Equalization states.

Multiple - family units may also come in for tighter assessment scrutiny under a State Board proposal for "additional staffing including top - level journeyman appraisers" to be assigned that division.

Some 3000 acres of prime gravel land held by four major extractors in the heart of the Valley also need closer review for tax purposes, in the state's opinion.

"The Livermore deposits comprise one of the state's great sand and gravel areas, with annual gross revenues that are about 30 times that from the Alameda County oil field," the report says. "These aggregates are ... the foundation for a large part of the Bay Area's construction activities."

"In spite of their significance, aggregates properties have a very low priority in the assessor's industrial appraisal program," the report concludes.

Castlewood Country Club's two golf courses could be in for a tax jolt under a chapter in that lengthy review of county assessment practices.

"There is a discrepancy involving a golf course that is improperly included in a Land Conservation Act contract," the State Board of Equalization contends. "The golf course in question is privately owned and operated in a manner that excludes participation by the general public."

The State Board argues that "the board of supervisors cannot extend exemptions or restricted assessment provisions to land that fails to qualify for such provisions, and their attempts to do so is not binding upon the assessor." The report does not specifiy which golf course, or golf courses, might enjoy that "Williamson Act" ag preserve status, but it is known that Castlewood obtained such a ruling from the county several years ago.

Las Positas and Springtown golf courses are owned by City of Livermore and therefore pay no property taxes, and Sunol Valley Country Club is owned by City and County of San Francisco and would also be exempt from most property taxes.

"We have no part in designating lands as agricultural preserves," a spokesman for the County Assessor's office advised The Times. "Those contracts are entered into by the property owner and the board of supervisors, and we adjust our assessment accordingly."

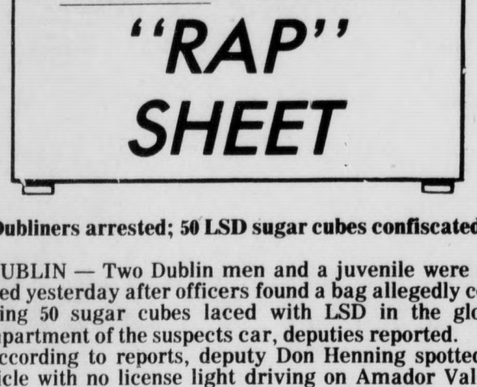
That same spokesman could not comment on the state board's critique of sand and gravel land valuations "because we haven't received a copy of the full report yet," indicating the state mailed those reports to the press even before copies were sent to the county assessor.

A representative of Castlewood's management acknowledged that "we entered into a Williamson Act contract with the county some years ago, but we have been audited since then by the State Board of Equalization and they saw no conflict at the time of those audits."

The state board report suggests the county assessor should be assessing golf courses "according to the constitutional provisions of Article XIII, Section 10," a reference to constitutional changes voted by the California electorate and giving golf courses some "open space" consideration for assessment purposes, but not as generous as the Williamson Act provides.

The Castlewood spokesman questioned the State Board of Equalization's reference to "a privately owned golf course" and wondered "what does that have to do with the Williamson Act?" That official also observed "Castlewood gave up its non - profit tax status some years ago ... we have always been open to catered public gatherings and golf tournaments."

There was acknowledgement however that any attempt to switch Castlewood's 357 acres to "the highest and best use" that is applied to most commercial properties "would be a severe financial blow" to that biggest and busiest of East Bay golf complexes.



Dubliners arrested; 50 LSD sugar cubes confiscated

DUBLIN — Two Dublin men and a juvenile were arrested yesterday after officers found a bag allegedly containing 50 sugar cubes laced with LSD in the glove compartment of the suspects car, deputies reported.

According to reports, deputy Don Henning spotted a vehicle with no license light driving on Amador Valley Boulevard about 3 a.m. yesterday. He stopped the car as it turned onto York Drive.

Henning noticed the odor of alcohol on the driver, and performed a search of the car. A bag containing 50 sugar cubes was found in the glove compartment, and officers said the cubes tested positive for LSD.

Arrested and booked on suspicion of a controlled substance were Daniel Lee Pace, 19, of 6934 Pine Court in Dublin, and his 18-year-old brother, Jimmy Lee Pace. A 17-year-old was also arrested.

In a signed statement, the suspects allegedly said they paid $75 for the LSD, purchased earlier in Redwood City. They said it was going to be distributed at a birthday party at Bonita Park.

The suspects were released on bail.

Flu shot program accelerating

County health campaign

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — County health officials, fielding some 500 calls a day for more than a week, expect up to a quarter - million people at the first of two "Swine Flu Sundays" scheduled for this weekend.

Some 2,000 people in the county already have been vaccinated, said acting director of public health Dr. Carl Smith, with "no reports of illness or adverse side effects."

The past week, he said, has given his office "nothing to indicate people are backing off" the shots following the deaths of about three dozen people last week on the East Coast.

Federal, state and county health officials investigating the cases say there is no relationship between swine flu vaccination and the deaths of the elderly recipients.

Dr. Smith said no "special report in system" has been established in the county, but that any deaths following innoculations would have been discovered through normal channels.

Programs in other counties have been criticized for keeping people in line for several hours while waiting for their shots.

But local program director Gloria Taylor said each site in the county will have four innoculation tables set up. Some 1,250 people have volunteered to help with innoculations, she added, bringing the total staff to nearly 2,000.

Translators will be at each site to offer explanations in Spanish, Chinese, Japanese, Tagalog, Cambodian, Vietnamese, Portugese and French.

The bivalent vaccine for protection against both swine flu and the current A/Victoria strain will be administered to those 60 -years-old and over, and to anyone suffering from chronic illnesses such as diabetes, heart or lung or kidney trouble.

Bivalent innoculations will also be given to those between three and 18-years-old. They will receive a supplementary shot in a month.

Those between 18 and 59 who are not considered seriously ill will be given the monovalent injection for protection against the swine flu virus only.

Proof of illness will not be required, said the county's chief of communicable diseases Dr. Dan Milner. Interviewers will decide if the bivalent vaccine is necessary.

Officials also caution persons who are allegric to eggs that the dead virus used in the vaccine is cultured in eggs. They should consult their doctors before taking the shot.

They also warn those with fevers not to be innoculated, but to return when the temperature is less than 100-degrees.

'Swine Flu Sundays'

The "focal point of the entire mass innoculation program in the county" will center on two "Swine Flu Sundays" scheduled within the next two weeks, say health officials. But other vaccination days also are scheduled. The complete list through the end of the month includes:

•Today, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. for those 60-years-old and up at the Senior Citizens Center, Eighth and H streets, Livermore.

•Sunday, Oct. 24, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., County Fairgrounds, Pleasanton; innoculation for the general public.

•Monday, Oct. 25, 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., Kottinger Place, Pleasanton; for senior citizens only (60-years-old and up).

•Friday, Oct. 29, 11 a.m. top 4p.m., Senior Citizens Center; Livermore; 60-years-old and up.4

BART's budget, bickering big battles

By RICK VOGT
Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — Bickering among transit directors and high costs are the campaign main issues, say the three men vying for the Bay Area Rapid Tranist District 5 seat.

The three running for election in the district which includes part of the San Ramon Valley, Livermore-Amador Valley and the Hayward area, are incumbent Robert Allen of Livermore, and opponents John R. McCardle of Danville and John V. Ferguson of Hayward.

Allen and McCardle are doing the most campaigning and have gotten into a fight over elelction signs, with McCardle taking Allen to court for tearing down his signs.

McCardle contends that Allen ripped down the signs to keep his opponents name from the public's eye.

Further, McCardle said that Allen believes that if no one knows an incumbent's opponents, the incumbent will win an election.

Allen said that he tore down the McCardle signs because he believed they were in violation of the state's outdoor sign laws. He still believes that, although an Alameda County judge ruled that Allen cannot remove a McCardle sign without first sending a letter to the court.

Ferguson hasn't gotten involved in the sign hassle because he said he's spending very little money on his campaign and cannot afford signs.

Allen, Ferguson and McCardle all believe there should be harmony on the BART board of directors, and all three believe they can promote that harmony if elected.

Allen, 50, a memeber of a three-director minority on the board, said that he'll work to break the "bloc voting" on the board.

"I will not be part of a new bloc, either," Allen said. "I will vote my own mind." He said that if the board of directors could straighten out, many of BART's problems would be resolved.

Ferguson, who hasn't attended a BART board meeting, said he'll work to promote harmony and would also try to persuade directors to hold meetings at night so people who work during the day can attend the meetings.

Directors should put the public's interest ahead of any personal feelings, said Ferguson, 45-year-old postal supervisor.

McCardle said that he's "shocked and appalled" at the way the directors conduct business.

Further, he favors removal of the entire board and a fresh start.

The 33-year-old lawyer believes the board of directors is the "most important issue facing BART.

He said as long as bickering continues among the directors, that BART's problems won't be resolved.

McCardle said that BART must find funds other than the half-cent sales tax with which to continue operating.

He said that BART's costs should be paid from the state general fund, not the local property or sales tax.

McCardle said that because he has been active in Democratic politics, he has a "rapport" with legislators in Sacramento and believes such a change in BART funding wuld be feasible.

If elected, McCardle said he would push to experiment with a flat fare which he believes would induce people to ride the system.

"The purpose of BART is to get people off the freeways. One way to do that is through the fare structure," McCardle said.

People riding BART should not be charged the cost of their rides, he added.

McCardle said he would push for train service to the Livermore Valley, for late night and weekend service and a better feeder bus system if elected.

Allen said that if he's elected, he would try to boost BART revenues by imposing a $1 surcharge for anyone going to or from Daly City, located outside the district in San Mateo County.

He would also push for a tax on high-rise buildings which have flourished near the BART line in downtown San Francisco and Oakland.

Ex - Granada principal plans to sue

LIVERMORE — Demoted principal Jack Lee's grievance is turning into a lawsuit.

Lee has received word that the Livermore Unified School District board decided Tuesday night, in closed session, to support an earlier decision to transfer Lee from his principalship at Granada High to a district office job, at several thousand dollars' cut in pay.

It was a blow to lose the position he had held with pride for many years, says Lee. But worse in his opinion is the implication he was not doing a good job at Granada. He plans to sue the district, school board and individual employes, he told The Times yesterday after consulting with his attorney.

In a lengthy news release, Lee outlines from his own point of view events surrounding last spring's demotion and the events that followed. Here are excerpts from that release:

From April 11 until Oct. 20 when I received the last of the "sealed envelopes" I have been legally and ethically unable to present the facts about my demotion and transfer from Granada High School.

Now that the Livermore School Board has seen fit to reject my grievance I am free to tell the entire story. Many people have asked, "Why?" "What did you do?" "How could this happen?"

For 23 years I have been in education in Livermore. My wife, Sally, and I moved to Livermore over 20 years ago as we felt it was importamt to be part of the community where we both served.

Four of our five children have graduated from Livermore schools. In all of this time — 23 years — I had never received a negative evaluation. I have never received even a questionable evaluation.

...On Feb. 24, the date of my first evaluation conference for the 1975 - 76 school year, he (Secondary Education Director Lee Thompson) handed me a sealed envelope. No previous conference no intimation. He just watched my face as I opened it and read, "I can no longer recommend you as principal of Granada High School."

On Feb. 26, Mr. (Superintendent of Schools Leo) Croce and Mr. Thompson met with me and Mr. Croce said, "I support Mr. Thompson" and showed me a large dossier that I had never before seen, saying, "It's all in there." THAT VERY NIGHT the school board held a "special" meeting (it was a Thursday) to determine that, "you may be assigned to a position other than principal of Granada High next year." ...In spite of the large size of this hastily contrived "auxiliary file," only 18 of the 120 pages actually applies to Granada. ...None of the material in this dossier contained the results of actions on my part.

...My educational career has been ruined, my reputation tarnished and my family subjected to embarrassement.

Fire safety problem — money

By BRUCE LEWIS
Times Staff Writer

SAN RAMON — As arson investigators sift through the rubble of Neil Armstrong School, district officials are pondering the need for a fire detection system.

Presently, San Ramon High School is the only school in the San Ramon Valley Unified School District protected by a smoke detector alarm system.

The reason?

Lack of funding.

"You must ask yourself if the additional expense for such a system is worthwhile," said Virginia Jouris, a member of the school board.

Usually, she noted, fires aren't a big problem in schools and the education of children comes before protection of property.

"We will look and explore and see how we can best handle our expenditures," said Mrs. Jouris. "We aren't going to make a commitment now.

"Our first concern is to get the kids back in school."

Disney, the school to which Armstrong pupils have been temporarily assigned, is also unprotected against fire.

It is unlikely that either Disney or Armstrong will get fire protection equipment in the near future because of the lack of funds and other priorities. The other priorities, according to district business manager Arthur Bachelor, include installation of fire alarm systems in other schools.

Monte Verde School is next in line for a system.

"There is about $16,000 in the budget this year and that is probably just enough to do one school," Bachelor explained.

The district has budgeted $10,000 a year for the past three years to cover fire emergencies.

The fund will take care of the $5,000 deductible on the fire insurance policy that will finance restoration of Armstrong.

The unofficial damage estimate on the buildings is $250,000. The contents are being inventoried. Cause of the fire is listed as "a strong possibility of arson."

"The reason for the fire fund," said Mrs. Jouris, "is that we had a hard time getting fire insurance last time (as a result of other district fires).

"The school board decided we should build up a reserve fund so we would have something to fall back on."

Recent state legislation allows school districts to set aside up to one per cent reserve for insurance purposes.

"The bill gives the school board more latitude on how they can spend the money," said Bachelor. "We can use it to reduce our insurance deductible, pay the cost of the deductible, or go to self insurance sometime in the future."

The school district's insurance premium this year is $48,165. It provides $23 million worth of insurance protection, including protection against fires.

Because of the Armstrong fire, there is the possibility the district's insurer may force the installation of fire detection equipment under threat of cancellation of the policy.

Antioch Unified School District, faced with fire insurance cancellation, did just that.

District officials there authorized the installation of a motion detection system in all 11 schools and in the administration and maintenance buildings. The cost: $110,000.

Antioch pays another $900 a month for an alarm company to monitor the intrusion system and to report break-ins to the police department.

"We've only had two fires, both during the day, and our fire experience is really good," said district business manager Ralph Burris Jr.

Research, he says, will show that most school fires are set. Fire statistics seem to bear out Burris' conclusion.

"Our system can detect intruders who might set fires, and if something burns and falls in a room, will alert us to the fire," he explained.

Burris added: "The system has already proven effective. We have had no major theft and no incidents of vandalism to speak of since the installation. And we haven't had any fires. The system is a lot of money, but worth it in the long run."

Mt. Diablo Unified School District, Contra Costa County's largest public school system, has been experimenting at several of its schools with a less sophisticated audio detection system. Someone monitors school rooms for sound and reports suspicious noises to local police.

The school district isn't happy with the system and is looking for something else.

Mt. Diablo administrative assistant Dan Pope says administrators will meet next week with alarm company representatives. "We will look at both smoke detection and intrusion alarm systems," Pope said.

A system like Antioch's could cost Mt. Diablo schools more than half a million dollars.

Philip Phillips, fire chief of the Valley Community Services District that fought the Armstrong fire, says he would like to see a sprinkler system in the schools.

However, he notes that "it would have been cheaper to install it while the schools were being constructed.

"We can't force schools to install them the way we can a business.

"They are under state authority and we have no control over the school district."

For San Ramon Valley Unified School District trustees, hard decisions lay ahead.

Do they install a fire detection or protection system?

Should they take a chance that there won't be another fire and ignore the threat? Or should they continue to tuck away money into the fire contingency fund for future fire emergencies?

HPRR— miniature success

PLEASANTON— The Harvest Park Railway is throttling along under full steam, thanks to teacher Andy Jorgensen and a couple dozen prospective Casey Jones'.

Inspiration for the model railroad complex at Harvest Park School came via Jorgensen's resurrection of model equipment he had stored in his attic since childhood.

Bringing the equipment to school, Jorgensen sparked the interest of some 35 sixth, seventh and eighth graders last year who soon started bringing in their own engines, sections of track, and tools.

Most of 1975-76 was spent in bolting lines together, working on scenery on the table layout and organizing a student model railroad club.

Jorgensen found the students initially just played with the trains.

But a serious interest in maintenance, construction of tracks and bridges and scenery has developed.

One student has made a layout of the tracks and put together a study of where the jumpoffs occur. Another, Tom Unger, is the railroad club's electronics wiz.

Student Mark Harri has built some of the bridges and others are charged with repair and repainting duties and wiring of tracks.

Other faculty members and secretary Monique Figlietti have provided railroad pictures which hang on the walls of the seventh grade pod near the model railroad complex.

Most of the current railroad club members have their own engineer's caps and wear them on special occasions.

The club members and Jorgensen decided two weeks ago to dub their layout the Harvest Park Railway with "corporation" colors of yellow and orange.

In the coming weeks they intend on expanding the lines and putting in a classification (railroad) yard.

Southern Pacific look to your laurels, here comes the Harvest Park Railway!

HAYWARD— Wilcken Fox, an administrative aide for many years in the Alameda County schools office, was listed in serious condition at St. Rose Hospital yesterday after suffering heart failure Wednesday morning.

Fox's heartbeat was restored with the help of two bystanders after he had slumped to the ground near the Hall of Justice construction site shortly after 9 Wednesday morning.

Special children

DUBLIN — "Just As I Am," a class for special children who are mentally handicapped, is held on Sunday mornings 10:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. at St. Philip Lutheran Church, Davona Drive and Alcosta Blvd.

The project is a joint effort by teachers from St. Philip and Valley Christian Center. However, the class is not limited to members of the two churches, but rather is planned so that parents are free to attend worship services at the church of their choice.

There is now a ramp for those who are physically handicapped also. For further information, please call the church offices: 828-2117.

Key staffer stays on. . .

LIVERMORE — Kay Dunham wanted to retire this week, but they couldn't do without her.

Finally, Livermore Unified School District officials persuaded her to work three more weeks as executive secretary to the personnel director — while newly appointed personnel chief Jack Waggoner gets his bearings.

"Just like Kay," agreed those who work with her. "Never takes a sick day or a vacation, that redhead."

Her admirers, numbering in the hundreds, flocked to the Livermore High student union Wednesday afternoon to trade "Kay Dunham stories," share brownies and punch, and say goodbye to the lady who has held one of the top positions in the school district's secretarial staff.

Hired by Superintendent of Schools Joe Michell in 1955, Kay was one of four secretaries in the pre - unification Livermore Elementary School District.

Now, the district employs about 55 secretaries, including four in the personnel office besides Kay.

The personnel office is in charge of hiring and keeping records on some 1,000 employes.

In 1965, Kay became secretary to Jim McCarty, assistant superintendent in charge of personnel. Later, Sterling Macfarlane took over the personnel position until his resignation last spring.

Kay's "friendly, kind manner and tact" was praised in her own personnel reviews. One teacher, Jack Beery, said, "You seem almost to have an organized fan club."

Jim McCarty, who worked with Kay 14 years, said, "She's one of the hardest working people. She never works by the clock. If you tell her she's crazy, she says: 'Oh, well. Somebody has to do it!'"

Kay and her husband, Tom, have three married children and six grandchildren.

Chemist monitors smog

His first round of inspections over, Ted will take the night's print-outs into the front office and sit down at his old wooden desk, entering figures in columns and making computations.

Having started his day at 8 a.m. in the Fremont station, he'll stay in Livermore until 4:30 p.m., phoning information to San Francisco BAPCD headquarters (people may call them at 771 - 6000 for smog information) and the working in the lab.

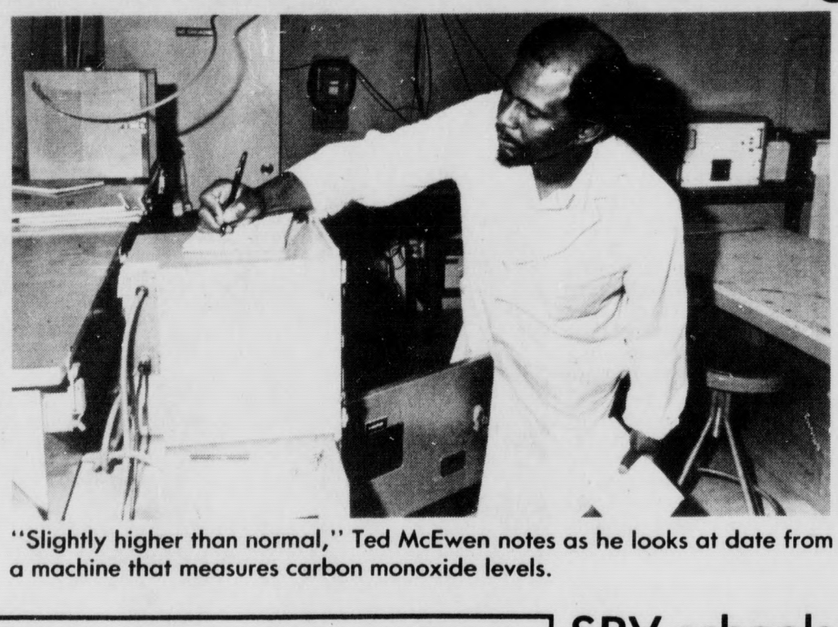
McEwen has enjoyed his solitary job since the local station opened eight years ago.

He takes pride in repairing most of his own equipment breakdowns, even when he's greeted, as he was Monday, by a pool of purple chemicals spreading across the floor from a weekend leak.

"Theoretically, the machines can go five days without anybody here," he says.

"But I wouldn't leave them that long. They get lonely."

— by Pat Kennedy



"Slightly higher than normal," Ted McEwen notes as he looks at date from a machine that measures carbon monoxide levels.

Clean air and economy

Assemblyman Floyd Mori of Pleasanton, chairman of the Assembly Subcommittee on Employment and Economic Development, announced yesterday a hearing will be held Monday on the impact of air pollution controls on California's economic development.

The hearing will be at 9:30 a.m. in the Hayward city council chambers, 22300 Foothill Blvd.

Purpose of the hearing is to examine options which will permit the business investment and job creation that California requires in the years ahead while maintaining a level of air quality which is healthy for plant, animal and human life, Mori said.

"The state's economy must create 250,000 jobs each years for the next five years if we are to reduce unemployment to a more tolerable level of 6 per cent," Mori said, "but many people in business and labor are concerned that environmental controls may prevent the economic development California needs to produce these jobs."

Mori said California industry must spend nearly $5 billion in the next 10 years to meet existing and proposed environmental standards. This capital investment, along with lack of techology, in some cases, to meet standards may cause firms to expand or locate in other states, said the assemblyman.

"Chronic unemployment is California's most critical economic problem," Mori said, "but we must also recognize that we have some of the most serious air pollution problems in the United States. Ambient air quality in the South Coast violates almost all air quality standards listed and the San Francisco Bay Area also has serious air pollution problems. We need jobs and we need a clean environment."

Among those invited to testify are representatives from the California Air Resources Board, California Chamber of Commerce, Planning and Conservation League and California Pollution Control Financing Authority.

A debate with sub-titles

The best laid plans of teachers and technicians are oftimes knocked esunder by unexpected mechanical snafus.

Like the Pleasanton Joint School District's "Great Debate" between Superintendent Bruce Newlin and teachers unit president Tom Zach.

The two huddled for the better part of two weeks to determine the ground rules, the press was advised of the time, place and modus operandi, the two principals showed, everything was hooked up for video taping and the "Great Debate" proceeded.

Unfortunately, the clip-on microphone worn by Dr. Newlin was found to have malfunctioned part-way through the discussion. Then it was learned— after the microphones, tables and other props had been struck—the main boom mike had not functioned too well, either.

So much for the audio portion!

But the picture isn't half bad.

It would help if you could read lips, though.

Zach suggested Wednesday that newsmen participating recall the questions they asked and give them to Bob Scruggs, who oversees the district media center at Pleasanton School.

It has also been suggested that Newlin and Zach dub those portions that were not picked up by the microphones.

One group (a teachers group at Harvest Park School) viewed the videotape and tried to get the gist of what was asked, what Newlin and Zach responded and who made the more succinct points.

The original point of the closed session discussion was that it would be offered later to all individuals and groups in the community.

That idea has virtually been scrubbed.

Along with the audio portion of the discussion.

But the turn of events has not made any visible difference in negotiations between Pleasanton administration and teachers.

They're still at loggerheads.

SRV schools seeking Armstrong classrooms

SAN RAMON— The administration of the San Ramon Valley Unified School District will meet this morning to determine options for near future housing of Neil Armstrong School students, following a mass meeting with parents Wednesday night that closed with some rancor.

Superintendent Allan Petersdorf said he would shape a recommendation for the board following this morning's meeting. The board will meet in special session next week or be polled on the prospective recommendation.

Present options under consideration are returning some upper grade classes to the undamaged "E" Pod in the first week of November, purchasing portables for placement on the Armstrong grounds or holding to the present setup.

The latter, double sessions for Armstrong and Walt Disney students at the latter school, will incur a major drawback when clocks are moved back to standard time a week from Sunday.

This will mean it will be dark until almost 7:30 in the morning and sunset will be shortly after 5 p.m.

The double sessions are presently scheduled so that Disney students attend from 8 a.m. to 12:20 and Armstrong students from 12:20 to 4:50 p.m.

Petersdorf said the administration and board hopes to add more buses and possibly route them so (after standard time returns) they'll make stops closer to residences (in addition to the central pickup point at Armstrong).

The portables would cost approximately $6,500 each for one year. Petersdorf reported Wednesday they are in touch with a company that could provide six at that price within the next two weeks.

However, the district would need 16 to house the entire Armstrong student body, which would be quite expensive as weighed against the long range value, Petersdorf opined.

Some members of the audience of approximately 250 to 300 became irate late in the question portion of the meeting, one man having a hot exchange with board president Harold Zuckerman and later stalking from the California High little theater.

Most of the questions centered on why the district didn't have smoke detecting devices and a sprinkler system in the burned-out school.

The angry questioner contended the district could pay for a sprinkling system with insurance money.

But Petersdorf said it would cost the between $75,000 and $85,000 to incorporate such a system.

Doctor's hospital talk

it is a central location in the I - 680 corridor from Alamo to Sunol.

Goldman blamed the poor attendance Wednesday night on the political campaigns which are coming to a head and drawing away the activities of local citizen activists. More will come to Pleasanton meetings after the elections are over, he felt.

The doctors expect to collect 5,000 to 10,000 signatures of support for the hospital in doctors' offices from Danville to Pleasanton. Then there will be a public hearing, probably in a few months, in this area so the state licensing board can determine the need for a hospital.

There is no question about need, said Goldman. The need is there today and with a "population explosion" occurring in the San Ramon Valley it won't be long before another group will start proceedings for a third hospital, he said.

A bid for a privately - owned hospital in Dublin - San Ramon four or five years ago failed by only one vote on the state board, noted Goldman. There's twice the population in the corridor now and there should be no problem in getting the license, said Goldman.

Valley Memorial blocked the earlier application by installing a medical clinic in San Ramon, but that won't make any difference now to the doctors' application, Goldman believes.

Some Livermore residents have opposed Valley Memorial's plan to build a Pleasanton hospital, believing that some day Valley Memorial would abandon many of the medical services it has in the Livermore building. Hospital officials deny this would be the case, but Glasser alluded to it Wednesday night.

Glasser feels that if the doctors build the one hospital allotted to Pleasanton, Valley Memorial will have to tend to its own knitting in Livermore and insure a good facility for that city and its future growth.

Better ambulance service would result by locating the doctors' hospital in Pleasanton, said Glasser. The increased number of beds would make it more profitable for a firm to run better ambulance service, he said. Brandes felt it there might be enough ambulance business to wipe out the city's $27,000 a year subsidy to current ambulance service.

Rep. Stark earns second term

Congressman Pete Stark's "new liberalism" comes through as "new spending" more often than we would like; and he still tends to perform like the rich kid who has the newest toy on the block.

But, once the man emerges and then settles down, we can see genuine hope of Fortney Stark rendering positive service to the Ninth Congressional District. And that is the reason The Times will once again offer our endorsement to Congressman Stark in the upcoming elections.

Frankly, it would be nice to see a few more Republicans emerge to challenge for national office, if only to lend a little balance to the Congress that relies heavily on "the two party system." Suburban areas such as ours offer one of the few remaining prospects for Republican challengers.

The problem is that the GOP manages to come up with a different challenger every time ... for state office or for the House of Representatives. Only once in two decades can we recall the Republicans coming back with the same contender, for the same high office, two elections in a row.

That is no way to woo the voters; that is no way to offer "a meaningful alternative" to a steady parade of Democrats who are making a mockery of "the two party system," at least in Alameda County, and — before long — in Contra Costa County too.

This newspaper's policy has been to go for the best man available, regardless of party. Congressman Pete Stark stands out among the current crop of candidates, and that is why he gets our vote.

This Ninth District would still be better served with a real choice, and a real contest. We hope Jim Mills sticks around long enough to show us his stuff two years hence. That would be good for the Valley, good for the nation, and a real service to our democratic process.

But not Tunney

About the only argument advanced against Sam Hayakawa's bid for the United States Senate is that "he's too old to launch a career in the Congress."

Given the childish, super - sexed antics of too many Congressmen in recent years, it would appear California and the Congress could use Sam Hayakawa's brand of parental maturity.

Senator John Tunney is a good example of the childish representation we don't need. His phony "starvation diet" of recent note, his plastic postering of the Kennedy image, his disastrous leadership of that mandatory two - language ballot ... in all of this John Tunney has proven he has not grown one inch in that high office, and is not likely to grow if we leave him there another six or 36 years.

To reject Sam Hayakawa strictly on the basis of his 70 years is to suggest this nation didn't profit from the last years of service rendered us by Sam Rayburn or Dwight Eisenhower.

This nation right now needs scholarly, mature leadership, and a sense of moral responsibility. Sam Hayakawa has those qualities. And even if he only gives us six years of his servitude, it would be a vast improvement over the last six rendered by John Tunney.

Two vie for LARPD

Editor,The Times

This letter is in response to a recent letter by J. Stearns concerning LARPD candidates ... First, I would like to restate my approval of the Sycamore Grove purchase. In 1974 I issued a statement that "the Sycamore Grove has possibilities for a fine park in the future and that the price was right." I still feel this way ...

Second ... regarding the board meetings ... I have been involved in Parks and Recreation for the last 18 years. This is longer than any of the candidates (with the possible exception of the incumbent) now seeking a directorship on the LARPD board. If you were to total my attendance at board meetings over the last 18 years and not just the last few months you would find ... I have attended LARPD meetings considerably higher than any of the candidates, less the incumbent ... I feel involvement with the programs and the people is just as important as attending board meetings. I would challenge any of the candidates to match my total involvement with LARPD, not just at board meetings, but out in the field where the action is ... This is where I have focused my attention in the past and will continue to do so as a LARPD director in the future.

Prudent ability

Editor, The Times

I recently had a conversation with LARPD candidate Ernie Rodrigues. During the course of our conversation, Ernie related to me an incident which occurred during the past softball season. It seems that he, as Livermore Softball Association president, was obliged to pay some $300 out of association funds for a bypasser's windshield which was broken by a foul ball. When I advised Ernie that the Homeowners insurance of the batter involved would probably have paid for the damage, he, in effect, shrugged it off.

Now I wonder, would Ernie have shrugged it off had the bill been paid out of his own pocket instead of LSA funds? I believe he should have investigated all possible insurance implications before he wrote out the check. It is not my intention to cast doubt upon the integrity, honesty or sincerity of Ernie Rodrigues, nor to impeach his record as LSA president. Ernie's record of service to the athletic community is above reproach. I do however, seriously question his ability to prudently manage nearly two million of our hard-earned tax dollars.

FOCUS/Simon-Mills

Where's media?

The Jim Mills for Congress Campaign Committee may have blown its one big moment in the sun.

Given the stumping support of the Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, plus good will appearances by State Attorney General Evelle Younger and Congressman John Rousellot, the Mills organization still failed to draw any television coverage and got Page 1 coverage from just one of the dailies circulating in the Amador-Livermore Valley.

It is indeed surprising when television stations don't "cover" a member of the President's cabinet stumping in the area, and when a major San Francisco daily misses the Simon-Mills affair entirely. Two dailies in the valley placed the significant campaign event on Pages 5 and 13.

This in no way should be construed as a reflection of Mills' abilities as a candidate for Congress.

The 9th District is one of the Republican Party's "target" districts, the GOP somehow feeling incumbent Fortney Stark is vulnerable.

Strictly on the positions he has taken, Stark was "vulnerable" when he ran against unknown Edson Adams. But he has that 2-1 Democratic registration, based on the blue collar and minority ranks on the west side of the hills.

Simon presents a better image and is more articulate than any other member of President Ford's cabinet or circle of GOP campaign tub-thumpers.

Mills' views on the economic situation and the work ethic closely parallel those of Simon's.

For that reason, but more for the fact that Mills appears more responsive to the "little guy" and middle wage earner, we believe he would be a better representative of the entire 9th District.

Stark gives us the impression he's too busy "sending" or putting across his viewpoint, or is not "receiving" what someone with a differing view is trying to tell him.

Mills, next to Floyd Mori, is probably the best valley - based candidate for Congress, Senate or Assembly to emerge in recent years.

But unless he can gain additional media exposure in the days remaining, especially in the populus working-man strongholds of Hayward, San Leandro and East Oakland, he doesn't stand a chance of getting more than a third of the total vote.

Which to this writer will be a shame as I believe this district deserves someone more representative than Fortney Stark.

Postal service

Copy of a letter to—
Postmaster General
Washington, D.C.

A child's seventh birthday can be very exciting ... however if the gifts are not received from her family, it can be a very disappointing event. This disappointment was experienced by my daughter due to the lack of supervision, consideration and job performance on the part of the Pleasanton Postal Service...

My family mailed a package from Ripley, West Virginia on Sept. 25 ... not receiving it by Oct. 9, the day of her birthday, I called the Pleasanton Postal Service and was told, without checking, the package had not arrived. The following Monday was a postal holiday and the next day, Oct. 12 when I arrived home from work at 6:00, there was a notice of "Attempt to Deliver" in my mail box stating I had the following day to pick this up. I had not received any prior notification or even given an opportunity to ... for a neighbor to pick it up...

This identical situation occurred through the same postal service a year ago. The package was returned to the East Coast and my family had to pay for the return postage and mail it back to me....

I am divorced, employed full time and often don't arrive home until 6 p.m. ... how can I get packages delivered to me or even notification of such?? I am now receiving a one - day option which obviously does not allow enough time and the packages are being returned which is very costly, frustrating and disappointing.

I am writing to demand better service from the Pleasanton Postal Service...

Teaching gap

Editor, The Times:

I have lived in Pleasanton and taught in this district for twelve years. I have always felt very lucky and thankful for being a part of this system. While other districts hassled over major and minor conflicts, we were able to talk out our differences, maintain our perspective, and arrive at a mutually agreeable solution. Our mutual focus remained on the students and quality education. High priority was given to working together and supporting each other.

Over the past several years I have noticed a widening gap between our district administration and our teachers. I am sad now to see how distant and indifferent we seem to each other. Impersonal rules and laws seem to control our interactions. How can we get back together? Why doesn't a board member accompany the district lawyer at negotiations, so that there can be at least a minimum personal contact and face-to-face discussion of issues and feelings for both sides? Why have several mediation meetings been delayed at such a crucial time? Why was the Newlin-Zach debate, a chance for all interested public to hear both sides, suddenly changed to video-tape? Why are intimidating letters being sent to teachers who acted in their best conscience at a time now when reconciliation seems so important? Why were only a portion of the teachers who participated on September 22, 1976, reprimanded and not all teachers? Is this the kind of example or leadership we need that will bring our two groups back together?

My greatest hope is that we can settle our differences very soon, that someone will be big enough and creative enough to initiate some positive action. Let us begin to patch up some of the scarred relationships, and get back to focusing totally on our students and learning.

Miller opposes 'U'

Editor, The Times:

The Times and the Herald criticize some of us for having the effrontery to oppose Measure U, the oversized and overly costly LAVWMA pipeline. We do believe in solving the water pollution problem, but not at the expense of wasting the taxpayer's money and deliberately making the air pollution problem worse.

LAVWMA's 19.7 mgd project — 1. is ridiculously oversized for any conceivable future industrial capacity, 2. has an oversized residential capacity which is a smog hazard, and 3. costs 20% more than a resonably sized pipeline would. Are you aware that the cost to you will be the equivalent to a $.30 to $.40 tax increase!

The Herald says all this "boils down to a question of how much you trust the people you elect to public office." The Times accuses us of raising "doubts about the integrity of a city council majority..." ... Right now some Valley elected officials are trying to take out the protective wording in the LAVWMA agreement which requires voter approval for large, expensive projects. That is so they can go ahead with this oversized project anyway, even if we vote it down. Indeed, Pleasanton's city council has already voted to bypass the voters ... The Herald has suppressed and the Times has played down this "bypass the voters" issue.

There is a smaller, cheaper project (15.6 mgd) which allows some modest residential growth, can include adequate industrial capacity (2 mgd), solves the water pollution problem and does not significantly worsen air pollution. We can get this better project by soundly defeating Measure U and insisting that LAVWMA set this smaller project for the March election.

round the town

Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr.
Apt. 3D, Sacramento, CA.

Dear Jerry:

How are things, Jerr? What with you on the campaign trail for good old Jimmy Carter (you really are for Jimmy, aren't you Jerr?) and me tied down with preparations for the annual Jaycee Haunted House Party, our paths haven't been crossing much these days.

But I know you're busy, leading the people of California into this and that. Which is what prompted me to drop you this note. Your "California Whale" campaign is really something else, if I do say so.

As I understand it, you intend to focus the entire state government on the problem of whales during the month of November. I received your handsome press packet, complete with photos of whales and facts of whales, which provides all the thrilling details.

"California Celebrates The Whale." That's your slogan. And it's a catchy one, I might add. That historial review on "the origins of the whale" was also helpful. I never realized there was that much about whales I didn't know .

I am also indebted to Larry Martz, your very capable Media Consultant, for that invitation to a special press briefing on whales. But since that's the same day we planned to dab gaudy colors on our Haunted House, I won't be able to make Larry's press conference in Sacramento.

However, Larry did provide me with his toll - free, 24 - hour telephone number in case I had questions, and I really plan to take advantage of Larry's generosity with state funds. There are a number of things I don't know about whales. Come to think of it, there isn't much I know about "California Celebrates The Whale" month. Or why.

Is this the forerunner of a whole series of "months" in which you plan to single out various species for public attention? I mean, there must be a million different animals, birds, fish and stuff floating on, over or alongside California, Jerr. Even if you salute one of 'em every month, wouldn't that take quite a few years to run through the full list?

(There's also a question of just how long you plan to remain in Sacramento anyhow ... but that's a whale of a different color, so to speak.)

Is "Whale Month" a continuation of that great campaign you and Senator Johnny Holmdahl whipped up as "The Stray Dogs Bill of Rights"? You certainly seem to be making a play for the wild animal vote, Jerr. Is there something you know about the future of this country you aren't telling us?

Now please don't get the impression I'm putting you down on whales. I have as much love for a whale as the next guy, I guess. Frankly, I never gave it much thought, until I got your press packet.

"Whales are still fair game for harpoons," you advise us. And that's a fact. I never heard of harpoons being used for anything else. Is it your plan to ban the manufacture and sale of "Saturday night harpoons"? What about those folks who live along the coast of Orange County and need harpoons to defend their families from vicious Odontoceti whales ... the ones with teeth.

I don't mean to sound smartalecky, but have you and Larry and the rest of the state cabinet really thought this through? What about the working classes who rely on whale harpooning as a livelihood (most of whom are Nordic minorities, I understand ... a small but energetic vote) ... what if they join the Teamsters?? This thing could get messy, Jerr.

I'm just thinking of your best political interests, old friend. Are you willing to save a whale if it means losing the White House?

How will your policy on whale preservation jibe with your promise to revive detente? Do you realize that Russia looks upon the whale ... even our whale! ... as a source of food, fuel and hand lotion?

Now, I know you've already lined up many prominent people for your "California Celebrates The Whale" show ... musicians, artists, whale - sized sculptures and all that. But I still believe you ought to consider cancelling this whole thing, Jerr.

Some of the folks out here in taxland are beginning to think nobody in Sacramento cares about jobs, housing, teachers wages and that sort of thing. There's unrest, real unrest out here, Jerr. If you plan to renew your lease on Apartment 3D beyond November of 1978, then I think you should give this "Whale Month" thing another thought.

How's it gonna look when you're out there on the campaign trail, again, and some guy is passing out bumper stickers that tell us ... "Jerry Brown saved whales, so he could give the rest of us the shaft."

MIKE ZAMPA

Mad dogs

Fads are so cosmic in England. Nothing insipid like hula hoops or eskimo yo-yos. British trends are the stuff of substance. They revirberate world wide. Send cultures off in a new direction.

Look at Carnaby Street. It's mod fashions helped lay groundwork for a lifestyle. In harness with the Beatles and Mick Jagger it ushered in a new world of freedoms — helped tear down old conventions.

Bold fashions and revolutionary lyrics were the seeds of Woodstock, and Altamont.

Nothing like that ever resulted from streaking, or pet rocks.

Even in "Olden Times," British fads packed more punch.

Take beheading. There were 2,000 of the things held at the Tower of London, the Yeoman Warder guide tells you. The separated remains of all victims are still buried neath the castle's chapel floor. It was an honor of sorts to get chopped at Tower Hill, considering the list of unlucky worthies. Sir Walter Raleigh was given the axe. So too was Sir Thomas More, Queen Ann Boleyn and the infamous Guy Fawkes, who tried to blow up Parliament.

The Warders (Beefeaters) joke that beheading will make a London comeback. They've run out of places for corpses, however. And surely there is a city ordinance against the old custom of dangling severed heads from nearby Tower Bridge.

So the British need more civilized diversion. Fortunately, they display an ingenuity of choice that transcends goldfish gourging or phone booth stuffing.

In England they've revived an old art form. It's called Brass Rubbing, and if it's a bit maudlin, well, it's also immersed in national and religious heritage.

Rubbers take etchings from tombs and graves. They drape long sheets of black construction paper over brass relief plaques on the tomb. The paper is rubbed with a chalk or crayon until details of the relief are vividly outlined.

The etchings make prized wall decorations.

At one time most English churches opened their doors to Brass Rubbers. The art form has become a passion, however, and some plaques are endangered. More rubbing would produce a bass relief of a skeleton.

Worse, mass appeal has stripped the art of its dignity. Most of the rubbings are taken from tombs in church floors. On a busy day a solemn burial plot can look like Grauman's Chinese Theatre. All that's missing are the foot prints.

For this reason many churches have turned out Brass Rubbers. Where it is still allowed, it now costs. In most cases, copies of original plaques are employed. But rubbing mania does not wane.

Brass fanciers line up for a spot in Westminster Abbey's courtyard. They jam the basements of lesser chapels.

In the cathedral where Shakespeare is buried you can buy a copy of the rubbing from his headstone. The inscription is a clever plea that his bones never be moved. The way it sells, he should have considered a copywright.

Many shops sell completed copies. But they are not the essence of Brass Rubbing. The key is taking part, creating a personal art treasure.

Certainly the rubbings are not unique. There are not many tombs left open to the artist's chalk. Workmanship may not always be of the top caliber, either.

But in their creation, the rubbings convey a sense of history

Which is more than you can say for Silly Putty, or a lot of other gimmicks we occupy idle minds with here at home.

Lighter Times

Vandalism has become such a big thing these days that I think we are helpless if we try the traditional approaches in fighting it. So I have thought of a better, more constructive way of dealing with vandalism. I am forming a company called Vandalism, Inc.

I want to do two things with the firm: market good, safe vandalism equipment and provide sound management for vandalism projects. Since vandalism is here to stay, why tolerate sloppy, amateur work?

There are many ways vandalism can be improved. For example, the working conditions of your average vandal are poor. They usually work in the dark and are under constant fear of being discovered by police. My firm, with the assistance of federal funding, would build studios for vandals so they could work on their various projects in a conducive environment. This would raise vandalism to an art.

What counts in art is style. Anyone can smash a window. It's the effect which matters. We must ask questions like "Are most of the panes broken?" Or "Is there a pleasing, random arrangement of the broken areas in relation to the surviving, whole ones?" I envision a vast library of vandalism criticism developing, written mostly by unemployed art history majors.

The goal of all this, of course, is to build a whole segment of the economy dependent on vandalism. What better way to create new work projects than to have a segment of the economy dedicated to tearing down so that others will have to build up? I'm surprised that Carter and Ford have not thought of this. After all, they had the same institution to inspire them that I had — the Pentagon.

Opening lead — Q ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

One chapter in Boris Schapiro's book is entitled "No Swing." It covers hands from team games where something went wrong at both tables.

East's notrump opening was one of those weak notrumps the British like to bid. South's two-heart call was a sub minimum, if you can say that many nice things about it.

West's two notrump was competitive. North's jump to four hearts was based on the expectation that South would hold a better hand. West's double was based on his two aces plus. He opened the queen of clubs and shifted to a trump after it held. East's queen forced South's ace.

South ruffed a club and led a diamond to his jack and West's ace. At this point West fell asleep. He led a second trump. South won with dummy's king, came to his hand with the king of diamonds and eventually discarded a spade on dummy's last diamond to make four hearts doubled and score 590 points.

The board wasn't an exact tie. The bidding went the same way at the other table except that North bid just three hearts. West made a hungry double and defended the hand one trick better. He did take his ace of spades and give his partner a trick with the king, but that South made three hearts doubled for a score of 530.

Ask the Jacobys

An Oregon reader wants to know if spades were always the highest-ranking suit.

The answer for contract is "Yes". In the game of bridge and the early days of auction it was the lowest ranking, but it was then promoted from bottom to top.

Labor opposes Prop. 13

The 60,000 - member Alameda County Central Labor Council announced it opposition to Prop. 13, the dog racing initiative, on grounds the measure was "monopolistic and detrimental to the best interests of working men and women."

Executive Secretary Richard K. Groulx said the council acted "after long and serious study of a proposal to revive a form of gambling that was chased from California 30 years ago in a storm of scandal and disgrace."

"We don't see either the necessary controls or good motives that would make the second time around more meaningful to the interests of the people," said Groulx.

He said benefits accruing to "taxpayer and worker from Prop. 13 are nil.

"It's a plain and simple attempt by a handful of promoters to create a billion - dollar industry that chiefly would enrich nobody but themselves," Groulx said.

The Alameda council's action swelled to more than 1.5 million the number of union members whose organizations have endorsed a "no on 13" position for the Nov. 2 ballot.

Included were the United Auto Workers, International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, Teamsters, Service Employes, Hotel and Restaurant and Bartenders Union, Communications Workers, Machinists, United Electrical Workers and moe than 30 other AFL - CIO unions.

MacBride today at Hayward

Roger MacBride, Libertarian Party presidential candidate, will address the public today at noon in front of the cafeteria at Cal State Hayward.

A graduate of Princeton and Harvard Law School and a Fulbright Scholar, MacBride says his candidacy offers a real alternative to the Democratic and Republican candidates who "differ only in degree."

A former Vermont legislator who now operates a farm in Virginia, he is the co-creator of the "Little House On The Praire" television series and "Young Pioneers" television movie.

Mori against Prop. 14

LIVERMORE — Assemblyman Floyd Mori, speaking to 125 government students at Livermore High School this week, explained his opposition to Prop. 14' the farm labor relations initiative.

"The real issue," Mori declared, "is whether labor law should be in the Constitution. I think that it is a bad isdea to put labor law in the Constitution and deprive the legislature of the flexibility to change it as conditions change."

Mori described as "moot" the farm labor initiative's attempts to deal with the questions of access to grower's land for union organizers and funding for the Farm Labor Board. He said Prop. 14 merely echoses the present status of those issues.

Group endorses cityhood

DANVILLE — The Association for the Preservation of Danville Blvd. has endorsed incorporation of the San Ramon Valley which appears as Measure K on the Nov. 2 ballot.

"Incorporation would bring better control along Danville Blvd. and more support of the general plan," according to Gail Christensen, a board of directors member of APDB.

Other organizations wishing to endorse incorporation may call Leslie Sweeney, 820-3198.

Foreman joins forces with ABC Sports

NEW YORK — George Foreman joined forces with ABC Thursday in a deal that will present the former heavyweight champion as a fighter, a commentator, a hunter and, perhaps, a dramatic actor.

Foreman still maintains a gym in Livermore.

Roone Arledge, president of ABC Sports, said that he had found during negotiations that the power-punching fighter with the woeful stare possessed a keen sense of humor.

What followed was not a prepared skit, but it could have been:

Foreman: "It's a great opportunity to be associated with anything that has a connection with Howard Cosell. (Laughter and a smile from Cosell seated nearby).

Arledge: "Okay, you can put down the cue card. (More laughter). Fade out."

The agreement is for three years, with an option to continue it, and "is well into six figures," Arledge said. Of course, there would be additional money involved for the telecast of Foreman's fights.

The deal also gives ABC first refusal on the telecast of a Foreman bout and does not prevent Foreman fighting on closed-circuit television — such a fight, too rich for home television, would be Foreman against Ken Norton for the title which might have been vacated by Muhammad Ali or a rematch against Ali.

No set number of fights or appearances in other roles was stipulated, Arledge said at a news conference.

Foreman will be a sports commentator and appear on Good Morning America and The American Sportsman. He is the outdoor type, living on a 200-acre ranch at Marshall, Tex., where he has a lion and tiger for pets.

Reds champs again

NEW YORK — Johnny Bench smashed a pair of home runs and drove in five runs as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the New York Yankees 7-2 Thursday night, completing a four-game sweep of the 1976 World Series.

The Reds became the first National League team in 54 years to win consecutive world championships. The last NL team to accomplish that feat was the New York Giants of 1921-22.

Just as he did a year ago, left-hander Will McEnaney came out of the bullpen to nail down the final victory. He saved it for starter Gary Nolan as the Reds accomplished only the 12th four-game sweep in the 73-year history of the Series.

It was the first sweep in 10 years. The last team to accomplish that feat was the Baltimore Orioles, who took four straight from the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1966.

For the first time in the Series, the Reds had to come from behind. But they did the job in typical Cincinnati style, with a stolen base setting the stage and a home runs both capping the winning rally and breaking the game open.

The Yankees' frustration was demonstrated in the top of the ninth inning, when New York Manager Billy Martin, complaining too loudly from the dugout, was ejected from the game by first base umpire Bruce Froemming of the National League.

The Yankees had jumped in front in the first inning when Thurman Munson, en route to a Series-tying record of six consecutive hits, looped a two-out single to right field. He circled the bases when Chris Chambliss sliced a double up the leftcenter field alley.

Joe Morgan led off the fourth inning with a walk. After Tony Perez flied out, Morgan stole second base without a throw from Munson. Dan Driessen fouled out, but George Foster drilled a single to left, scoring Morgan with the tying run.

That brought up Bench, who had six hits in 11 at-bats in the first three games of the Series and drove in five runs in Game Four. The Reds' husky catcher walloped a 1-1 pitch down the left field line and stood at home plate, watching the drive.

In the fifth, the Yankees got a run back. Mickey Rivers opened with a single and one out later, he stole second. It was the first successful stolen base against Bench and the Reds in 27 post-season games dating back to the 1972 World Series against Oakland.

Munson then singled up the middle, scoring Rivers and making it 3-2.

Martin left just in time to miss seeing the Big Red Machine break the game wide open.

Dick Tidrow, relieving Ed Figueroa, retired Foster on a fly ball.

Next came Bench, and this time the Reds' catcher unloaded a shot that sailed over the left-center field fence for three more Reds runs.

Granada spikers top Dublin in three sets

The jinx is still intact.

Dublin High School's girls' volleyball team fell to their second loss of the year yesterday, as Granada pasted the Gaels, 15-6, 6-15, 15-8 in Dublin.

Mar Bosque, Bittye Vierra, Lynn Kranich, and Lynn Bousliman keyed the rally that put the match away. The Gaels crept to within 11-8 with Karne Jewell garnering two serve points, but Lisa Bonetti and Bosque came back with serve points for Granada.

Granada jumped off to an overwelming 14-1 lead in the first game before the Gaels briefly rallied for five points, eventually losing the match.

Dublin controlled the second game from the outset with Linda Finco, Kathie Center and Alica Crumpler picking up crucial points. Joanne Callender picked up the final serve points for Dublin.

In another EBAL match Amador dumped Foothill 15-6, 15-2.

Jayne Kuhns and Carmen Macon led the victors. Both scored 10 points.

Pokes, AV renew old rivalry

It all started back in 1923. When silent movies cost no more than a dime, prohibition was still in effect and people enjoyed the simple pleasures of rural life.

That's when Livermore and Amador Valley high schools played their first - ever football game. The Cowboys, playing on their own field, defeated Amador Valley, 44-6 Oct. 5, but a red - hot rivalry had begun.

Tonight at 8 on the Cowboy field the two teams will meet for the 54th time. Livermore, 2-1 in East Bay Athletic League competition, needs a victory over the 0-3 Dons to stay in the competitive EBAL race. In other games tonight winless California is at San Ramon (2-1) and Foothill (2-1) plays Dublin (2-1) at Amador Valley. In a Saturday contest Granada (2-1) hosts Monte Vista, also 2-1, in a 1 p.m. contest.

However, for those fans who are interested in nostalgia the Cowboy - Don game offers the most interest.

Livermore leads the long series but most of the games have been competitive.

The first game was an exception. The Pokes, who started playing football in 1894 (the Dons didn't start until the school opened in 1923), were far too strong for Amador.

Team captain Alan Henry and Jack Williams scored four and three touchdowns respecitvely to lead the Pokes over the first - year Dons.

In what has to be classified as a major understatement the old Livermore Herald described the play of Henry and Williams in their Oct. 12 edition:

"They (Williams and Henry) were the veterans of the Livermore squad and they set an example for the new men on the squad to follow."

The Pokes dominated the series until the late forties. The 1928 game was won by Livermore, 20-0 on the Dons' field.

The strength of the Cowboy team was expressed in the Pleasanton Times in its account of the contest:

"The defeat, according to the scoreboard, read something like 20-0 and it is suprising that it wasn't greater."

To show the intense rivalry the schools had built up by then the Times went on to say: "The unfair refereeing was evident to everyone and not even Livermore would have the nerve to refute that statement."

The early Poke - Amador contests were generally defensive - oriented. Livermore won the 1931 battle at Amador, 13-0. A key interception and several goal line stands aided the Cowboy victory.

However, things generally got better for Amador Valley fans.

One of the Dons' sweetest victories came on Oct. 18, 1946 when Amador edged the Cowboys, 7-6 on a long touchdown pass.

An account from the Herald describes the contest. "Two long forward passes and a two - yard plunge for the extra point brought Amador Valley High School's football team from behind and gave them a 7-6 victory over Livermore in an EBCL (East Bay County League) football game."

Jim Fallon scored on a one - yard run for the Cowboys but the place kick failed and Amador had one of its most exciting victories in the series.

Livermore turned the tables the following year with a stunning 13-6 victory as Phil Sanders returned an interception 100 yards for a touchdown that broke the Dons' back. Livermore was leading 7-0 at the time but Amador Valley was driving towards a possible tie in the second quarter before Sanders' theft gave the Cowboys a 13-0 lead. The Dons scored a touchdown in the second half but Sanders' interception proved to be the key for the Pokes.

When Amador and Livermore competed in the EBCL they played against teams like Emeryville and Centerville (Washington High). Now they compete in the EBAL, made up of eight schools drawing students from a suburban, not a rural area. The EBAL is gradually gaining respect as one of the toughest leagues in the East Bay Area.

Listen to what Hal Briggs, head coach of Pleasant Hill High School and one of the old vets on the East Bay prep scene has to say:

"I think the San Ramon - Pleasanton area (the EBAL) is becoming an outstanding league. It could be the league of the future in the entire area. The coaching is outstanding and there's some real organization on those teams."

But just remember, the foundation of the EBAL all began on an October day in 1923 when Livermore and Amador Valley tangled for the first time: the begining of one of the East Bay's oldest prep rivalies.

Start 15th season

Warriors open season tonight

OAKLAND — The Golden State Warriors open their 15th season since moving to the Bay Area from Philadelphia when they host the New York Nets at 8:45 tonight at the Arena here.

The Nets, the last champions from the American Basketball Association, a league whose red, white and blue ball, is now but a memory, suffered a crushing blow yesterday when their star Julius Erving signed with the Philadelphia 76'ers.

Following the opener here the Warriors travel to Portland to play the talent - rich Trailblazers Tuesday night in a game which will be simulcast back to the Bay Area over KNBR radio and KTVU Channel 2. Then it's back home for games against Portland (Thursday) and the Atlanta Hawks, Oct. 30.

There will be at least one familiar face in the Nets' line - up tonight. Nate "Tiny" Archibald, acquired in a trade from Kansas City, will start at guard for Nets' coach, Kevin Loughery. The only player ever to win the NBA scoring and assists titles in the same season (72-73) Archibald was chosen to the NBA All - League team last season for the third time.

Al Attles' Warriors compiled a pre - season record of 4-4 with wins over Denver, Los Angeles, Portland and Phoenix and losses to Denver, Los Angeles, Seattle and Portland. The club experienced a rash of injuries during the pre - season but all are relatively healthy except forward Dwight Davis who will likely miss the opener with a hamstring pull.

Notes: Al Attles needs two victories to achieve 300 regular season coaching wins in the NBA. Rick Barry needs 290 points to pass the 20,000 mark for his pro career, including his seasons in the ABA. The Warriors are scheduled for CBS-TV appearances nine times during the season.

Located in the heart of a general industrial area, primarily sand and gravel oriented industries, the site for industrial uses presents little problem. However, until El Charro Road becomes a public thoroughfare, the industrial and worker - generated traffic must use Santa Rita Road - Valley Avenue - Busch Road. Thus, industrial traffic would travel adjacent to present and future residential areas, potentially causing some problems, especially with noise. The marginal access driveway and the possible lack of adequate on-site parking for workers and delivery vehicles could also cause problems. PROJECT DESIGNATION: RZ-76-17
October 22, 1976

In accordance with the provisions of the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures, zoning ordinance amendment RZ-76-17 has been determined not to require an EIR but rather a negative declaration.

The project consists of amending Section 2-7.21, Article 9, Chapter 2, Title II of the Ordinance Code of the City of Pleasanton to allow "churches and other religious institutions" and "public and private schools" as conditional uses in the I-G (General Industrial) District.

Presently, the above uses are not allowed in industrial zones. The present intent of the code, to protect non-industrial uses from noise, odor, vibration, smoke, truck traffic, etc. expected in industrial areas and likewise to protect industrial activity from intrusion by inharmonious uses, would be compromised by allowing church and school uses for they optimally require a relatively noise-free location. By making such uses conditional uses, however, it may be possible to insulate these uses from the industrial environment sufficiently to protect their uses. These uses should have little effect on industrial uses unless such uses are required to limit their intrusion on the church or school uses. It is the finding of the City Manager that this amendment would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California 94566, telephone 846-3202.

Unless any written appeals of this case are received by this department within ten (10) days of the above date or publication of this notice in the Pleasanton Times, whichever is later, this decision will become effective.

PROJECT DESIGNATION: Z-76-202
October 22, 1976

In accordance with the provisions of the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures, project designation Z-76-202 has been determined not to require an EIR but rather a negative declaration.

The project consists of the construction of three one-story, commercial service buildings, 8,800 sq. ft., 24,000 sq. ft., and 13,800 sq. ft. in size, together with off-street parking and landscaping.

Major problems with potential flooding and traffic circulation exist at the site. The orientation of the concrete slab tilt-up buildings to future roads is not known and has the potential of placing the unattractive side and rear portions of the buildings adjacent to future roadways. At this time, a satisfactory solution to none of these problems has been proposed. However, since Pleasanton enforces the flood hazard area standards of the NFIA, some solution to the flood problem would be required prior to construction. Traffic circulation and design problems may be solved under the conditional use procedure. It is the finding of the City Manager that this project would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California 94566, telephone 846-3202.

PROJECT DESIGNATIONS: RZ-76-19 and RZ-76-20
October 22, 1976

In accordance with the provisions of the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures, rezoning applications RZ-76-19 and RZ-76-20 have been determined not to require environmental impact reports but rather negative declarations.

The projects consist of (1) prezoning approximately 16.4 acres of unincorporated county land on the east side of Santa Rita Road between Highway 580 and a point approximately 700 feet north of the intersection of Santa Rita Road and Tassajara Road to the C-S (Commercial Service) District, and (2) rezoning an approximately 0.65 acre parcel of land located at 3534 Santa Rita Road (on the east side of Santa Rita Road about 225 feet north of the intersection of Santa Rita and Tassajara Roads) from the A (Agricultural) District to the C-C (Central Commercial) District.

The properties located on the west side of Santa Rita Road in this area are zoned C-S District, the undeveloped acreage to the east is zoned C-C District. The General Plan designates this entire area for commercial development. The existing uses in the area to be prezoned run the gamut from residential to industrial in nature, but they, taken as a whole, fit into the C-S District in Pleasanton's zoning scheme. The small A zoned parcel of land is surrounded on the north, east, and south by C-C zoned properties, so its designation as such would be in accordance with neighboring uses. Although the area suffers from traffic circulation and flooding problems, these may be addressed at the development stage where further environmental assessment must take place. It is the finding of the City Manager that these two projects would not create to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

Tough racing rules pushed by auditor

Far-reaching legislative and administrative changes for the horse racing industry in California have been recommended in a recent report to the California Legislature by the Office of the Auditor General.

However, nine racing fairs were "not included in the compilation of the data" used to make the determinations and recommendations in the report on the operation and financial records of the California Horse Racing Board, according to Jerry Silva, one of the authors of the study.

In response to one particularly critical section of the report released Monday which charged that "16 per cent of the officers, directors, and partners in horse racing associations ... did not reveal their criminal arrest record," Silva said that racing fair associations were not to be implicated in this or any other section of the report.

The primary racing fairs in the Bay Area are those at Pleasanton (Alameda County) and San Mateo.

In further close critical examination of the CHRB, major recommendations included:

1) All new licensing applications be processed through the Bureau of Identification of the Department of Justice.

2) Resumption of CHRB recommendations to the Governor and Legislature to control and increase state revenue from horse racing.

3) Enhancement of the integrity of horse racing in the state by the CHRB.

4) Adherence to the law in allocating horse racing dates and enforcing the proper payment of purses to horse owners.

5) Taking advantage of opportunities to increase state revenues from horse racing.

6) Expansion of racing weeks in the current horse racing season.

7) Elimination of the inequity of the present license fee schedule.

8) Imposition of additional control over totalizator operations since according to the report, "It is possible to program the totalizator to understate the dollars wagered at horse race meetings with resulting loss of state revenue" and results in an unfair distribution to the wagerors.

The study states further that "this activity would require collusion between two or more individuals, one of whom must be a totalizator company representative."

The West Coast Regional manager of American Totalizator Company, Bob Keller, said that, "Whoever wrote the report doesn't have an accurate idea of what goes on in race track betting procedures."

Keller explained, "There are hundreds of people involved with a number of checks and balances that would prevent the kind of tampering" with totalizator operations the report suggests.

Public hearings on the report were held during the Assembly Committee on Governmental Organization on Oct. 5 in Los Angeles.

Election aside, jail goes

MARTINEZ — A new jail will be built in Contra Costa County regardless of whether voters say yes or no to local Measure B on the Nov. 2 ballot according to Contra Costa County Public Information Officer, Mary Dunten.

The only factor to be decided by Measure B is which planning course the county will take, Dunten indicated.

A NO vote would allow the county to continue working on its revised plans for the new jail. Their original plans were changed after a petition was filed last year requesting revision.

A YES vote would require the county to start planning again; specifically to comply with an advisory federal standard.

Dunten further reported that current revised plans are being developed with the help of an advisory committee composed of citizens, persons from the criminal justice field and with consultants and architects experienced in jail architecture.

The proposed building will be low-level (three to four stories) and will not look like an institutional facility.
